

HOMELESS HUMMINGBIRD HELPED

"Buzz," a homeless baby hummingbird, sips at a medicine dropper filled with honey and water. Bird fell from nest into Del Mar street. Providing care is Jerry Reiley, 9, who found the tiny bird in a gutter beneath a tall cypress tree. Jerry says he will free bird as soon as it "can fly from cats."

Attack Carrier Ticonderoga To Be Based Here

WASHINGTON, May 22—The Navy announced today that the attack carrier Ticonderoga will be based at San Diego, effective July 1.

Rep. Bob Wilson (R-San Diego) said the Navy told him the carrier will be transferred to San Diego from its present home port of Alameda. The Ticonderoga, with a peacetime complement of 3,000 officers and men, is being overhauled in the San Francisco Naval Shipyard.

Last year the San Diego-based carrier Boxer was transferred to the Atlantic Fleet after the Navy reversed an earlier order assigning it to the Pacific Reserve Fleet.

Early this year the San Diego-based carrier Kearsarge was removed from the active fleet for conversion from an attack (CVA) to a support (CVS) flattop.

The Oriskany, a former attack carrier being converted to a support craft, also is to be assigned to San Diego as home port. The Navy announced this last December.

The Oriskany, with an air group aboard, will have a complement of about 2,200 officers and men, compared with the 1,200 officers and men aboard the Kearsarge.

CRUISES, PARADE SET FOR HARBOR DAYS

Harbor Days, sponsored annually by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, will open today with free harbor cruises at 1:30 and 2:30 p.m. from the foot of Broadway.

The two-day program will wind up the city's observance of World Trade Week.

Also on this afternoon's schedule will be demonstrations of water skiing and Coast Guard rescue operations in the bay along Harbor drive, as well as a whale boat race by Navy personnel.

The Parade of Lights in which decorated ships and yachts cruise the harbor will begin at 8:30 p.m., opposite Lindbergh Field. The parade will be followed by a harbor fireworks display.

About 125 floats, bands and equestrian and marching units will participate in a parade tomorrow along Harbor drive from Grape street to Market street, beginning at 2 p.m.

Other events tomorrow will be a 20-mile ski race, motorboat races, jet-assist takeoffs by Coast Guard aircraft and presentation of racing trophies at the San Diego Speedboat Club.

The carrier Bennington will hold open house at Broadway Pier today and tomorrow from 1 to 4 p.m.

State School Setup Overhaul Urged

By CHARLES DAVIS
The San Diego Union's Education Writer

A top-to-bottom reorganization of California's educational structure, including independent status for San Diego city schools, last night was urged to a statewide citizens commission here.

Dr. Cecil Hardesty, county superintendent of schools, addressing the Citizens Advisory Commission to the Legislature's Joint Interim Committee on the Public Education System, recommended:

1. Reorganization of county school offices into new intermediate units which, if circumstances warrant it, would transcend county boundaries.
2. "Substantial" reorganization of the state's school districts.
3. Creation of a new state agency to work only with the new intermediate, or go-between, school units for local districts.
4. Giving independent status to large school districts, such as San Diego, Long Beach and Fresno. By nature of their independence, these districts would not be required to deal with the new intermediate units.

Speaking to the 27-member commission in the U.S. Grant Hotel, Hardesty said a state Board of Education members, now appointed, should be nominated at a caucus of school district trustees and presented to the state's voters.

He also urged appointment of the state superintendent of public instruction by the state board.

Hardesty's remarks, later echoed in part by Dr. Charles Tupper, a county Board of Education member, came near the end of a morning-till-night succession of witnesses before the commission.

Earlier in the day, Dr. James R. Arnold said one of the most difficult problems of colleges is finding students adequately trained in reading and writing, although many do enter college well prepared.

Arnold, a Scripps Institution of Oceanography chemistry professor, also recommended more training in mathematics and foreign languages for public school pupils.

"Any student (not taking a foreign language) otherwise will find himself going into

Murder Trial Set June 29

The trial of Bayani F. Tobias, 25, on charges of murder and assault with a deadly weapon was set for June 29 at his arraignment before Superior Court Judge William P. Mahedy yesterday.

Tobias, a sailor, was indicted by the county grand jury Monday in the slaying of a bakery truck driver outside of the Log Hut beer bar at 1246 First Ave. early May 11.

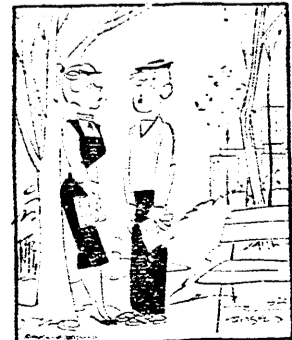

The slain truck driver, Clarence Ralph Mankser, 36, of 1332 First Ave., was shot three times.

Young Democrats Set Beach Party Sunday

San Diego Young Democrats will open their spring political activity tomorrow with a beach party and picnic at Mission Beach starting at 2:30 p.m., Al O'Brien, president, announced yesterday.

He said a delegation from Los Angeles, headed by Steve Smith, Southern California YD chairman, will attend to discuss co-operation in the 1960 campaign.

Bill Restores $1 1/2 Million In School Aid

U.S.-Impact Areas Here, Medicare To Get More Funds

The San Diego Union's Washington Bureau
Copley Press Leased Wire

WASHINGTON, May 22—President Eisenhower's signature on a nearly three-billion-dollar emergency spending bill for this fiscal year has restored more than $1,500,000 in additional federal-impact school aid funds for San Diego city and county school districts.

It also has cleared the way for expenditure of an extra $8,100,000 to finance civilian care phases of the military dependents' medical program until June 30, end of the present fiscal year.

EARMARKED FOR S. D.

Of the $44,600,000 for federal-impact school aid in the second supplemental appropriations bill signed by the President, San Diego city and county school districts are earmarked for $1,577,070.80. The funds represent a 15 per cent deficiency in originally scheduled appropriations for school aid in areas where defense or other federally-connected pupils have overtaxed school facilities.

Last year Congress voted funds 15 per cent short of what the administration asked for the program in this fiscal period.

A total of $24,600,000 is pegged for classroom construction in defense-impact areas, while the other 20 million dollars is to help finance school maintenance and operation.

Freighter's Keel Laid By Woman

Maritime Official's Wife Welds Initials On Plate Of 2nd 10,000-Ton Ship Here

Mrs. Marjorie Guill, wife of the vice president of the Federal Maritime Board, yesterday welded her initials on the keel of the second 10,000-ton freighter under construction here.

John Murphy, sales manager of National Steel and Shipbuilding Corp., told a large crowd at National Steel's shipyards on Harbor drive that "she probably is the first woman ever to lay a keel."

The 492-foot craft will be the second C3 cargo ship which National Steel will build for the American Export Lines under the Maritime Administration's 1.5-billion-dollar fleet replacement program.

Mrs. Guill's husband, Ben H. Guill, laid the keel of the first C3 Jan. 22. The shell of the vessel, already taking shape, formed a backdrop for ceremonies yesterday.

The two cargo ships are due for delivery in 1961. In addition, National Steel will build four other cargo vessels under the Maritime Administration plan.

Guill yesterday told the audience, many of whom were workmen given a break from their jobs on the first C3, that with hard work "you will continue to get these ships out here."

After brief opening remarks, C. Arnholt Smith, president of National Steel, presented Mrs. Guill a welder's torch, suitably inscribed, on St. of 1981 Bacon St., and a torch.

The 5,000-ton keel, the 319th laid at National Steel, was swung into position by a large crane and Mrs. Guill struck the first arc.

Cartier Gets Death Sentence

A sentence of death yesterday was imposed for the second time on Raymond L. Cartier, 31, convicted butcher slayer of his third wife.

The formal judgment on the small, quiet ex-sailor was what Superior Court Judge William P. Mahedy said he would order when he gave the guilty verdict at the conclusion of a non-jury trial Wednesday.

An execution date in the San Quentin Prison gas chamber, if any is set, will depend on Cartier's automatic appeal to the state Supreme Court.

That court upset a previous jury verdict ordering death and returned the case to Superior Court for retrial on technical legal grounds.

Cartier was convicted of killing Mrs. Geneva Ellen Cartier, 32, with a butcher knife and meat cleaver Nov. 11, 1957. He then set a fire in the couple's duplex apartment at 2804 46th St. in an effort to conceal the crime.

Cartier was a commissaryman second class on the repair ship Hector when he was arrested in the slaying. A probation department report stated Cartier was divorced by two previous wives on grounds of cruelty.

54% Of Cars Fail Check

More than half the cars checked by the police in vehicle safety checks this year have been found unsafe, David Thompson, executive director of the San Diego County Traffic Safety Council, said yesterday.

Thompson said an average of 54 per cent of the cars checked this month have been ineligible for the 100 per cent safe sticker. He said 120 cars were judged safe this week and 179 failed to pass the check.

Tires, license plate lights, stop lights and parking lights are the chief causes of failures, Thompson said.

Daley Trial Delayed By Restraining Order

The El Cajon Municipal dictation because Daley, in Court yesterday was temporarily restrained from proceeding with the scheduled trial Tuesday of contractor Donald L. Daley on 11 misdemeanor charges.

The charges against Daley, president of a construction company bearing his name, are an outgrowth of an arrest by La Mesa police April 2 following an alleged traffic violation.

The restraining order was signed by Judge Bonsall Noon in connection with a special civil action filed in Superior Court.

Noon set a hearing for Thursday for the El Cajon court to show cause why the order should not be made permanent.

The petition to prohibit the trial in El Cajon alleges the court there is without jurisdiction to try Daley because he was arrested in San Diego on the same charges. The case thus should be tried by a judge of the San Diego Judicial District.

3-Drunken Driving Suspects Arrested

San Diego police yesterday arrested three persons on suspicion of drunken driving. They are Victor Ruggieri, 56, a tavern owner, of 839 Thursday for the El Cajon court to show cause why the order should not be made permanent.

The petition to prohibit the trial in El Cajon alleges the court there is without jurisdiction to try Daley because he was arrested in San Diego on the same charges. The case thus should be tried by a judge of the San Diego Judicial District.

Maritime Peril Linked To Harry Bridges

U.S. Official Scores Dock Chief's Plans

C. Arnholt Smith helps Mrs. Ben H. Guill from platform after National Steel freighter keel-laying.

Ben H. Guill of the Federal Maritime Board yesterday declared policies of Harry Bridges, boss of longshoremen, are squeezing the life out of the American merchant marine.

In a Maritime Day speech at El Cortez Hotel, Guill told 250 San Diegans involved in the maritime economy that "the West Coast longshoremen's organization stinks."

The former Texas congressman also lashed out at the trend in American labor organizations.

"There comes a time—and I think it has come—when the goals of organized labor have become a menace to the health of the national economy and indeed to our freedom," he said.

While he took the longshoremen's union to task in general, Guill paid high tribute to Thad Black, president of the local ILWU 1-29.

"There comes a time—and I think it has come—when the goals of organized labor have become a menace to the health of the national economy and indeed to our freedom," he said.

While he took the longshoremen's union to task in general, Guill paid high tribute to Thad Black, president of the local ILWU 1-29.

LEADER LAUDED

"Thad Black is helping to make San Diego one of the most important ports on the West Coast," said the vice chairman of the maritime board. "The union here is giving a dollar's work for a buck."

Guill also criticized James Hoffa, head of the Teamsters Union, for his attempt to bring all transportation unions into one vast, powerful combine.

"Such an organization could bring the United States to its knees overnight," he said. "It could wreck our economy and our defense."

STAND URGED

Guill said it was time Congress faced up to the fact that no one man is bigger than the American people or the American government.

In condemning the longshoremen's strike held on the Port of Los Angeles, Guill told San Diegans to "buck up."

"It's an ill wind that blows no good," he said.

Increased trade for San Diego, according to Guill, is due in part to the deterioration of the Port of Los Angeles.

Guill, his address injected with humor and frequently interrupted with applause, described increasing costs of handling cargoes in American ports and declining efficiency of labor.

"In the past 10 years one finds that the stevedoring wages and fringe benefits

Model Arrested Here In Dope Peddling Case

A 24-year-old model, reportedly five times married and the mother of three children, was arrested yesterday afternoon on suspicion of selling heroin and conspiracy to sell heroin.

The model, Nancy Dolores Hobbs, had been sought by police and state narcotics officers since Tuesday when six other persons were arrested in a raid on suspected narcotics users and peddlers.

Mrs. Hobbs, who is also known here as Nancy Moore and Nancy Nitz, was arraigned in Municipal Court yesterday on the charges after she was arrested in a Pacific Beach apartment. A preliminary hearing was set for June 12.

4 Students Rescued As Boat Tips

Four Palomar College students were helped ashore yesterday afternoon by a lifeguard and two other swimmers after a 14-foot boat in which they were riding overturned about 100 yards outside the breakers at Encinitas.

They were identified as Linda Williams, 18, of 1723 Varsity Ave., Escondido; Anne Kenny, 23, of 219 W. 11th St., Escondido; Richard Salvato, 20, of Ninth street, Del Mar; and Robert Holcombe, 20, of 110 Crest St., Encinitas.

SEES BOAT OVERTURN

Jack Brannon, a county lifeguard stationed at Encinitas, was aided by Phillip Thorpe, a former lifeguard, and Dave Lotterer of Encinitas who were on the beach when the boat overturned. Brannon saw the occupants spilled into the water.

Lt. Patrick Kahlow and Kimball Daun, lifeguards from county lifeguard headquarters in Solana Beach, arrived after the four students had been assisted ashore and helped beach the boat.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Daun said the students were unable to determine what caused the boat to overturn. It is owned by Holcombe and powered by a 40-horsepower motor.

The students had been attending a beach party at Moonlight Beach.

Daun said he thought all four of the students could swim some but that the girls were almost exhausted when they were brought ashore.

$5,000 Fire Sweeps Tug Moored Here

Fire last night caused an estimated $5,000 damage to a 65-foot tugboat moored alongside a converted Navy LSM in Mission Bay, east of Dana Landing.

The blaze destroyed a portion of the deck and hull and burned below deck in the forward and engine compartments.

The tug, owned by the Western Contracting Corp., was one of two tied alongside the LSM which is used as a service vessel for the dredge Western Eagle.

Fire Dept. Battalion Chief L. H. Lechien said the fire apparently was caused by fragments from a welding operation on the LSM which fell on the tug's deck.

Lechien said the glowing fragments must have smoldered for several hours before the blaze started.

William McCullough, a job superintendent, made the damage estimate. He confirmed that there had been welders working above the tug earlier in the afternoon.

A bystander cast the tug's mooring line free before any damage was done to the LSM or the other tug.

Junior College Plans 2 Aviation Courses

Two aviation courses will be offered this fall for the first time at San Diego Junior College, Walter G. Coats, coordinator of technical education, said yesterday.

The courses will meet Tuesday and Thursday nights beginning Sept. 15. One will deal with jet aircraft systems, including the Convair 440.

The other is a flight engineering course designed to prepare students to take the Federal Aviation Agency's engineering examination.

Copley YMCA Branch Plans Family Program

The Ira C. Copley Memorial Branch, YMCA, 3901 Landis St., will begin a special summer family program June 22.

The program includes swimming, crafts, dancing, beach parties, swimming instruction and use of exercise rooms and handball courts.

CASH RECOVERED Poppy Drive Helper Held Over Loss

A plasterer who helped two women sell Veterans of Foreign Wars poppies was arrested yesterday on suspicion of stealing the $12.31 proceeds.

The plasterer, Gene A. Brownrigg, 28, of 2525 A St., was held for police at a service station at Cable and Newport streets in Ocean Beach by M. M. Couch, 39, of 4830 Cape May Ave., and Kenneth Day, 31, of 3043 Jun St.

The poppy sellers, Vera Fitzmorris, 49, of 4769 Brightheaded Mrs. Guill a welder's torch, suitably inscribed, on St. of 1981 Bacon St., and a torch.

Model Arrested Here In Dope Peddling Case

A 24-year-old model, reportedly five times married and the mother of three children, was arrested yesterday afternoon on suspicion of selling heroin and conspiracy to sell heroin.

The model, Nancy Dolores Hobbs, had been sought by police and state narcotics officers since Tuesday when six other persons were arrested in a raid on suspected narcotics users and peddlers.

Mrs. Hobbs, who is also known here as Nancy Moore and Nancy Nitz, was arraigned in Municipal Court yesterday on the charges after she was arrested in a Pacific Beach apartment. A preliminary hearing was set for June 12.

OCCUPANT HELD

The apartment occupant, Benjamin T. Smith, 23, a carpenter, also was taken into custody at the apartment at 2725 1/2 Magnolia Ave., and booked in the city jail on suspicion of using narcotics.

Investigators say Mrs. Hobbs has sold heroin to state narcotics officers and allegedly conspired with two other men to sell narcotics.

The two other men have been identified as Charles Eugene Nitz, 25, of 907 E. Eighth St., National City, and James Joseph Kendall, 23, of 2636 Bancroft St. Both were arrested in the Tuesday raid and have been arraigned on narcotics charges.

State Division of Narcotics agents said she took her children to her mother's home in the Los Angeles area.

BROTHER CONVICTED

The agents, who asked that their names not be used, said Mrs. Hobbs' mother told them Mrs. Hobbs was instrumental in getting her 19-year-old brother to use marijuana.

The brother, Herbert E. Dierking, 19, a hospital apprentice at the Naval Hospital, was recently convicted of narcotics possession.

"This is a kick, man," she said as she was handed a warrant listing specific charges for her arrest.
