

School Bilingual Failures Alleged

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Education Department has failed to provide school districts proper guidelines for bilingual education programs, the legislative auditor general said yesterday.

A failure to adequately administer the program may lead to a loss of money for the state and federally supported program, the auditor general's report said.

Illinois Floods Spread

Soggy Illinois suffered more flooding yesterday while snow squalls buffeted parts of New York state.

The Illinois River was on the rise, threatening several businesses in Peoria and forcing several families to evacuate their homes at Rome, about 20 miles upstream.

Travel advisories were posted along southeastern Lake Ontario and parts of northwestern New York, where snow squalls were locally heavy overnight.

Five inches of snow fell in Syracuse, N.Y., with up to 7 inches measured in Oswego County.

education program so students, such as those who speak Spanish principally, could be eased into classes taught in English.

Among other findings after reviewing 17 school districts' programs, the report said the bilingual program suffers from a lack of adequately trained teachers.

Also, several school districts are uncertain about the objective of bilingual education. One approach calls for students to be taught English language skills intensively and be shifted quickly to regular classes.

Another calls for students to learn both their native language and English and remain in the bilingual program for a longer period.

Water Outlook Improves

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Unusually big storms the past two months dumped enough rain and snow on California to bring season totals closer to average levels, the state Department of Water Resources reported yesterday.

As of March 1, precipitation was 90 percent of normal, reservoir levels were at 110 percent of normal, and the expected season runoff was 80 percent.

Jean Brown of the department's snow survey branch said snow depths in the Sierra are running close to average and the snowpack's water content is about 105 percent of normal.

BILLY GRAHAM God Has A Mission For Singles

Q. Why aren't married people in churches more interested in being friendly to single people? I really get lonely for fellowship sometimes.

A. I suspect this is a more common problem than many pastors (and church members) realize. In all likelihood it is not that people are deliberately excluding you from fellowship. It is just that it is more common and natural for those who have families to associate with others who have families, and therefore have similar interests and problems.

However, I believe many families ought to be less ingrown, and should reach out to those who may not have immediate families; whether single people such as yourself, or elderly people, or others who for one reason or another are not part of a close family. I believe God would bless families who sought this kind of ministry.

Don't leave it all up to the families in your church. Perhaps God has a particular ministry for you, even one that you can do better because you are free of family responsibilities.

In the New Testament some of God's choicest servants were single (such as Paul and Timothy), and yet they were people who were greatly used of God in the lives of others. Make this a matter of prayer, and perhaps you will want to talk with your pastor about ways your church can minister to those who are single.
