PHOSPHORESCENT JEWELS FOR PEARL DANCE

"One of the most remarkable sights ever presented to a theater audience is the display of luminous pearls on the gown worn by a young lady in the role of a prima donna. The pearls are used in a scene as a climax to a beautiful scene, and the prima donna then reappears for an encore, and the lights are suddenly extinguished.

"The audience is amazed as it sees nothing in the blackness except the designs and figures on the costumes, the pearls standing out in relief with a greenish glow. Neither the faces nor the arms of the performers are visible as they stand in the darkness, moving slightly to and fro to heighten the effect. When the scene is finished, the lights are switched on and the scene assumes its natural aspect, nothing strange being seen in the costumes, as the curtain shuts them from view. A slimpo behind the scenes some 45 minutes before the "pearl" number is put on, however, reveals the caretaker of those costumes gingerly removing them from a specially designed trunk. The trunk is heavily padded with cotton to prevent damage to the pearl-trimmed dresses, which contain 50,000 pearls of various sizes and are insured for $100,000. After the gowns are removed from the trunk they are hung on the wall of the dressing room, and a battery of powerful arc lamps are trained upon them. For 20 minutes they are subjected to the dazzling light of the lamps, while the attendant painstakingly arranges and turns them so that each will receive a full share of the illumination.

"At the end of this period, the ballet girls appear and don the costumes. They are protected by black goggles, they too, stand in the brilliant light, slowly turning round and round, while the lamps awaiting their cue to enter the stage."—Popular Magazine.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Sanitary Container
One of the best ways of waste-paper baskets for vegetable containers, they allow air to circulate about the contents, thereby preserving them better, and making them less apt to attract insects.

Letture
Lettuce will keep crisp and fresh for several days and always be ready when needed, if washed thoroughly in cold water and placed in a paper bag with the top tightly folded. Keep in a cold place.

MOUNT CLEMENS MAN . . . NOTES CHANGES HERE SINCE 28 YEARS AGO

Mathew Slush of Mount Clemens, Mich., better known as the Bath City, was a caller at The Tribune office yesterday. Mr. Slush is a great enthusiast on those great mineral waters and their wonderful cures.

Those springs have been established and doing business for over fifty years, and they have stood the test of time, and have thousands and thousands of people to testify to their wonderful curative powers.

Mr. Slush said: My first trip to Tampa, was made twenty-eight years ago, the first of April. In making comparisons with conditions existing here with Tampa of today, I must say that your city has made wonderful strides, in its tourist business, as well as mercantile and commercial business. The city has a very prosperous air about it, in any direction that you may go, and the citizens of Tampa should certainly feel very proud of the beautiful, clean and up-to-date modern city."
